WORKING WITHIN AGRICULTURE AND SEASONAL WORK

(Updated April 2015)

About the industry

The labour market for workers in the Norwegian agricultural sector varies according to the time of year. However, there are many jobs for skilled farm workers on a permanent basis, both fulltime and part-time, that involve work all year round. These jobs include general farm work in milk and animal production (sheep, cattle and swine) as well as various plant crops such as wheat, barley and hay.

During the summer season, agricultural work in Norway is mainly in planting, weeding, trimming and harvesting of fruits and berries, vegetables, flowers and plants, trees and other kinds of plants. In comparison to many other countries, Norway has a relatively short growing season (roughly May to September); much of the seasonal work here is short but intense. If you wish want to work in Norway, visit www.workinnorway.no

Demand within this sector

The demand for employees in the sector is on the rise. At the end of 2014 there were 20 760 persons employed in sector, an increase of 6 percent on the previous year (this compares with an increase of 2 percent for all sectors of the economy). The main reasons for this development are primarily that units are becoming fewer but larger and that many farmers combine farm work with other work outside the farm. There has also been an increase in the average period of employment, meaning seasonal workers in the agricultural sector are often needed for longer periods. It is expected that there will be a slight increase in the need for new workers for harvesting and other seasonal jobs, as well as for permanent skilled workers for year-round employment. It is estimated that approximately 20-25 000 foreign workers come to Norway each year doing seasonal work in the agricultural sector. The majority of these workers come from Poland, Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia.

Language, education and training requirements

The majority of employers wish to employ people who understand Norwegian and can make themselves understood in "Scandinavian" language.
How to find work in the agricultural sector?

For agricultural work such as planting and harvesting, most recruitment is done well before the start of the season. The majority of these jobs are not publicly advertised, as the farmers use their own network and contacts to recruit workers from other countries.

The Norwegian Labour and Welfare Administration (NAV) has a database containing all published vacancies. Go to:

- www.nav.no and choose “ledige jobber” to find the job vacancies.
- Select the category "Jord-skogbruk, fiske og matproduksjon”.
- In the field for "Underkategorier” it is possible to select the categories "Jordbruk og dyrehold” (agriculture and animal production), "Matproduksjon og næringsmiddelarbeid" (food processing) or "Skogbruk, gartnerarbeid og hagebruk" (forestry and gardening).
- In the field for location ("Arbeidssted”), choose "Norge" for the entire country or your desired region.

It is also possible to make a good search only by writing the words "ferie" (holiday), "sesong" (seasonal) or "sommer" (summer) in the search field called "Søk etter ord i stillingsannonse". Then you will get all the vacancies containing one of these words. The ads will most often be in Norwegian.

Many employers will require a CV giving your personal details and a description of your education, practical experience and a little about your general interests and hobbies.

Employers and job seekers may contact the National contact point, NAV Service Centre EURES (NSSE) on tel.: +47 75 42 64 04 (Monday- Friday, 08:00 am to 15:30 pm) or e-mail: eures@nav.no to enquire about vacancies. On Mondays and Fridays (10:00 – 13:00) the EURES services in Norway is available on chat.

Wages

The basic hourly wage is set at 105.25 NOK per hour for unskilled labourers over age 18 for seasonal work of up to 12 weeks duration. For unskilled labourers over the age of 18 working 3 to 6 months for the same employer, the wage is 110.75 NOK per hour. These rates are renegotiated every year, usually in the early spring.

The hourly wages are higher for long-term and permanent positions in the agricultural sector; these start at123.15 NOK for unskilled workers over age 18; for skilled agricultural workers the hourly rate starts at 131.15 NOK per hour. There may also be additional wages for overtime, holidays and weekend work.

For strawberry picking and other kinds of harvesting, sometimes you can be paid in piecework wages. These can either be paid per kilo or on per unit rate and can vary somewhat from region to region. According to the relevant regulations, piecework wages must in any case be equal to the minimum hourly wage for the hours actually worked.

In addition, you can often get useful information from branch and employers’ organisations, such as the Norwegian Farmers’ Union ("Norges Bondelag"), the Norwegian Farmers and Smallholders Union, ("Norsk Bonde- og Småbrukarlag") and the Agricultural Employers’ Federation ("Landbrukets Arbeidsgiverforening"). See below for links to these and other relevant websites.
Taxes

When you work in Norway for a Norwegian employer, you are required to pay tax in Norway. For more information www.taxnorway.no.

Work Contracts

Read your rights as an employee and find a standard contract of employment, in English on www.workinnorway.no.

Preparing for relocation

Visit www.workinnorway.no to get general information about working and living in Norway and step by step guide on how to prepare before relocation. For additional information visit www.nav.no/englisheures.

Important things to consider

The majority of farms are in the countryside, the community can feel small and far-removed from city life. The people and the language will seem incomprehensible to begin with, but give the place and the people a chance and give your self time to acclimatize. If you enjoy the great outdoors, then life in Norway, the land of the midnight sun, is the ultimate experience!

The work can sometimes be tough and monotonous. For some periods, you may find yourself doing a lot of overtime and having to turn up for work at unsociable hours. Employers are looking for reliable people and will want you to stay for as long as there is work.

Many employers can provide accommodation, often in communal housing, so you may have to share the living space, kitchen and bathroom with other tenants. Some employers also have rooms available to let or camping facilities. The rent can vary considerably, depending on the standard of accommodation. Basic furniture and kitchen/cooking utensils can also be available. Since most seasonal work in the agricultural sector is to be found in the countryside, and public transportation can be very limited, you will often need your own transportation to get around.

Branch and Employers organisations

- www.la.no (Agricultural Employers Federation, only in Norwegian)
- www.smabrukarlaget.no (Norwegian Farmers and Smallholders Union)
- www.bondelaget.no (Norwegian Farmers Union)

Related information

- www.arbeidstilsynet.no (Norwegian Labour Inspection Authority)
- www.udi.no (Norwegian Directorate of Immigration)
- www.fellesforbundet.no (Norwegian Federation of Trade unions)
- www.landbrukstjenester.no (Norwegian Agricultural Services, association of agricultural staffing agencies)